Next Steps for the Church

The Church needs to be talking about matters of life, sex, unplanned pregnancy and healing from abortion in a deeply compassionate way. There is tremendous shame and isolation for those who face unplanned pregnancy— especially in the church. We need to create ways of opening honest conversations where those who need the community of Christ know they will be loved, healed, supported and restored.

Often women feel as though they're a victim of their circumstances (i.e. poverty or an unstable relationship) and feel like abortion is their only choice. Likewise, 79% of women are not sufficiently informed about resources that would help them if they chose life. This is where the church can powerfully make a difference.

KEY IDEAS AND IMPORTANT VERSES

Imago Dei

Because all humans are made in the image of God, we all have equal value. Therefore, all human life is cherished by our creator and must be equally cared for. This is totally counter cultural today because our world constantly creates categories of value and places people within those frameworks. But Christ demolishes it all.

Genesis 1:27-28 | Galatians 3:28

Pro-life is not political

Often the conversation of abortion is framed as a political one. But by doing so, we can forget that this is deeply personal. People are afraid, feel alone, and feel as though they cannot succeed in life if they choose life. The church has the responsibility to care for our vulnerable neighbors where they are and offer real support to practical needs. There's more to do than voting, we're invited to come alongside one another.

John 8:1-11 Jesus refuses to use this woman to make a political argument | Micah 6:8

Compassion

Many individuals in your congregation have experienced an abortion or know someone who has. Be very aware of your words and statements about the unborn life and remember to talk about the intrinsic value of the moms and dads involved too. Many don't believe God forgives abortion so tenderly mention the grace available for those who have experienced abortion.

Luke 15: God reveals his heart for the lost-not one of judgment but one of a running Father. He is ready to embrace his beloved; willing to do whatever it takes to go after and find 'the one which was lost'

Pro-life is Pro-People

Pregnancy resource centers holistically care for women's health: spiritual, emotional, and physical all at no cost. To be pro-life means we care about ALL life, we care about moms, dads, toddlers and teens. We care about the circumstances of families before a child is born and offer support after birth to ensure that moms and dads know they are not alone.

Matthew 11:28-30 | John 10:10
